Welcome to TV Channel Lists

Lists of television channel listings and line-ups from around the world.

Following Wikipedia's decision to delete TV channel listings in 2012, there has been no single source where one could easily view and compare the channel listings for various providers. This website seeks to fill that gap by compiling channel line-ups for free-to-air and subscription television around the world.

We currently have 69 articles on the wiki.

Please help by contributing the latest line-up data in your area. Channel listings change frequently and TV Channel Lists relies upon its readers to help keep the lists up to date.

Future channels and events[\[edit\]](#)

Unknown dates:

- 9 Kanal (primarily in Russian)
- Channel 20 (a Jewish-oriented channel)
- Hala TV (an Arabic channel)
- Channel 24 (a music channel)
- Channel 1 HD (if the IBA doesn't shut down)
- A children's channel (if the IBA shuts down, then it will be owned by the future public broadcaster)
- A news channel
- Up to four new channels of varying themes: sports, kids or leisure

2016:

- There are plans to shut down the IBA by March 2016 and to launch a new public broadcaster. The two existing channels will be replaced by a channel in Hebrew and a channel in Arabic, plus there will be a children's channel, presumed to launch on the current frequencies of Education 23. The radio network will also change as well.

List of HOT channels (Israel)

The following is a list of channels available on the Israeli cable television operator HOT, formerly operated as 3 separate companies: Golden Channels, Tevel and Matav.

History[\[edit\]](#)

Until the mid-1980s, only a single television channel operated in Israel - IBA's Channel 1 (Channel 2 began its experimental broadcasts at that time. Television viewers, who sought to receive channel other than Channel 1, began installing antennas that received Jordan's Channel 1 and Channel 2, along with METV. In the late 80's, however, pirate cable systems were a popular sight in many of the large cities, first at homes, and then in neighborhoods. Those pirate systems were large enough to compete each other in some cities.

In 1989, six 'legal' cable services were launched, thus disbanding the 'pirate' systems. In 1990, 31 broadcast regions were allocated to 6 companies: "Tevel", "Matav", "ICS" (which renamed itself to "Idan"), "Golden Channels", "Gvanim" and "CableTech". Each service were originally acted as a monopoly in each region, and they were forbidden from co-operating. However, all the companies purchased the same programs (excluding regional productions), by a shared company named ICP (which renamed itself to HOT Vision in 2003). "CableTech", which served its subscribers in Judea & Samaria, distributed its programs through a partnership with "Golden Channels". Although they were supposed to broadcast nationwide, the services were focused on the larger cities, and for several years they declined to switch their broadcasting format from analog to digital, despite the fact that about 70% of Israeli households were cable subscribers in 5 years. They finally made the switch as Yes, the satellite competitor which was founded in 1998, prepared for its launch in July 2000.

By 2002, some of the cable services became defunct - "Tevel" and "Gvanim" were merged to "Tevel", while "Idan" was replaced by "Golden Channels". The remaining services were faced with financial crisis after their attempt to block Yes's distribution by purchasing expensive television rights failed. In August 18th 2003, the three cable companies were merged into HOT, which also purchased "CableTech" to complete its nationwide distribution. HOT Vision was also folded into HOT in 2004.

List of Yes channels (Israel)

The following list is a list of channels available on the Israeli satellite television operator, Yes.

History[\[edit\]](#)

Following a monopoly over multi-channel television in Israel, which was made by the three cable companies by 2000, Yes was established in 1998 to create competition against cable services. The service was launched in July 28th 2000.

Although Yes ended cable monopoly, some claims that it created a duopoly, because no other television provider had entered the market. Yes was one of the many reasons given to bankruptcy of the smaller cable services, until those merged in 2003 to relaunch themselves as HOT.

Channel List

The list is shown in HD configuration. Some channels broadcast in SD using the same EPG number, and those are shown for non-HD subscribers.

List of Channels on SkyCable

Below is the current programming lineup of SkyCable channels in Metropolitan Manila excluding its Edge lineup and service areas in CAMANAVA (Caloocan, Malabon, Navotas and Valenzuela) and Rizal. The following lists are lifted from its digital platform.

Changes

Bronze 299

On November 1, 2013, the Bronze Plan is being increased from P 280 to P 299. To justify the price increase, SkyCable is adding PBO (Pinoy Box Office) and History to the plan.

List of RDS-enabled radio stations in Australia

About RDS

Radio Data System (RDS) allows for the broadcast of digital information on analogue FM radio services. Data that can be transmitted include:

- AF: Alternative Frequencies - allows the radio to automatically select the best frequency, where more than one transmitter is available
- CT: Clock Time - allows the radio to automatically synchronise its time with the radio station's
- EON: Enhanced Other Networks - allows the radio to monitor whether another station is transmitting traffic programmes and automatically temporarily switch to the traffic programme whilst it is broadcasting
- PI: Programme Identification - a four-digit unique station identifying code
- PS: Programme Service - an eight-character display, usually showing the station's name
- PTY: Programme Type - displays one of 31 pre-defined music types (e.g. pop, rock, news, etc.)

- REG: Regional - allows the radio receiver to remain locked to a certain region's programming
- RT: Radio Text - a 64-character text display, usually used for station slogans, station contact details, track information, etc.
- TA/TP: Traffic Announcement/Traffic Programme - TA indicates that the station broadcasts traffic information. TP advises that traffic programming is currently being broadcast and will allow the radio to automatically switch to the broadcast (e.g. if it is playing music from a CD)
- TMC: Traffic Message Channel - used for automotive satellite navigation devices (usually encrypted, requiring subscription)
